Dear Mr. Weilgart,

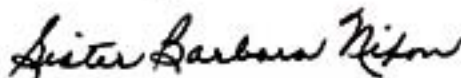

Thank you for your personal demonstration of your Dictionary Index. Your idea could make use of the dictionary in a more efficient manner; the addition of the alphabet strip on the book cover and the dark lines on the book edges is a very simple yet effective way of helping the person doing a word search.

I am sure that dictionary publishers would find increased sales on dictionaries that include this added feature.

As an elementary educator, I know that school children would find assistance in looking up words with the additional help of this innovative idea.

May your idea catch on and be viewed as valuable by dictionary publishers.

Sincerely,

Sister Barbara Nixon
Principal
